Arts for the Aging

About AFTA

Arts for the Aging is a pioneering organization that provides outreach programs specially designed to engage older adults in health improvement and life enhancement through the arts. Research shows that regular participation in programs like AFTA's helps to minimize age-related physical and cognitive impairments, and contributes to better physical, intellectual, and emotional health.

Founded in 1988 by renowned sculptor Lolo Sarnoff -- now an active nonagenarian at 94 -- AFTA's visual, performing, literary and intergenerational arts programs are led by trained, professional teaching artists. Teaching takes place in day-care centers, nursing homes and community centers throughout the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. About 1,000 seniors each year take part.

AFTA believes in an individual's inherent need to engage in self-expression, and that older adults should have access to quality arts programs. AFTA's outreach is focused on people who are disadvantaged and living with impairments, such as Alzheimer's disease. Fully 74% of AFTA participants have memory loss or dementia.

Nearly 200 youths take part in AFTA's intergenerational workshops. The knowledge children gain from seniors and the emotional boost that seniors feel with youngsters bridge generations and create better communities.

AFTA is a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization. Your generous pledge of support will help to sustain free, high-quality arts programs that improve the health and well-being of seniors. To learn more about the mission, contact AFTA or visit us at www.AFTAarts.org. You can also join AFTA's online community at www.facebook.com/ArtsfortheAging.

Contributions to AFTA are tax-deductible to the fullest extent allowed by law.
